NOAH VALENTYN

The work of Noah Valentyn is characterized by his exploration of the boundaries of our "being" as individuals and the individual in relation to the city and society.

Whether it's about the wildest dreams or the deepest emotions, Noah likes to put things into perspective. He makes his models timeless by using costumes adorned with accessories or in their purest form: human nudity.

In doing so, he constantly shows us how closely we as humans are still connected to our own nature. The themes from mythology, the Greeks, and Romans are just as relevant to the modern human. However, we often no longer realize that and question ourselves too much.

INFORMATION AND SALES

This little Smartphone Book is already yours. You can enjoy the art and poems when you're back in your hotelroom, or on your journey back home. But never forget to unwind and close the phone, computer and breath the air outside. See the people.

Interested in Noah's work? We are happy to inform you about all options. From private and corporate portraits to artworks and prints. From shoots in the studio to multi-media art. Anything is possible.

Even one of these works could be yours. Signed and numbered. At least, when you order in time. The edition and prints are limited.

The exhibition is sponsored by Pride Amsterdam. During pride there are many cultural events, exhibitions, performances. More information and the programm can be find on the website.

FLOURISHING FLOWER

In mystic blooms adorned, a maiden fair,
Her silence beckons, thoughts we seek to share.
From head to shoulder, tracing paths of light,
Her flawless skin reflects a soul's insight.

In awe we stand, her gaze, a mirrored art,
What secrets lie within her beating heart?
From eyes that hold the universe's grace,
A world unfolds, inviting our embrace.

Her face reached the state of perfection,
Yet, who is the true subject of reflection?
Is she the watcher, gazing upon our race?
Within her mystery, we find our place.

"You are included!" Love's unending call,
In every petal's hue, we stand tall,
With open hearts and minds, we dare to see,
The beauty of a world where all are free.

RED ARE ROSES TOO

In flowery mead, a ginger girl doth lie,
Her peaceful form, a sight to gratify.
The silence of her being, mystery we seek,
What dreams doth wander through her slumbering sleep?

A fragrance heavenly, the air doth fill,
As she roams the fields with daffodils,
Bright sunbeams weave a crown upon her head,
In nature's embrace, she lies abed.

Within her heart, the fire of ginger hue,
A spirit brave, in open fields it flew.
A will untamed, where none dare intervene,
Her sanctuary, a haven pure and serene.

When Morpheus' spell relinquishes its hold,
Her smile, a charm, makes strong hearts unfold.
Yet, in her eyes, a riddle to confound,
Whose name shall grace the words she doth expound?

TWILIGHT'S TRIUMPH

Amid twilight's veil, where shadows play,
Two lovers seek a haven far away.
In finest garb, their hearts are filled with pride,
Defying norms that seek their love to hide.

A journey bold, they undertake as one,
To find a realm where prejudice is shunned.
In distant lands, they dream to be set free,
Entwined in love, together endlessly.

Through moonlit forests, hand in hand, they go,
Their love's sweet essence like the blossoms' glow.
With every step, their bond grows ever strong,
In love's embrace, they know they both belong.

BEYOND APPEARANCES

Upon the bed, two girls lay side by side,
At first, one might assume they're kin, allied.
But truth be told, a love beyond compare,
In secret hearts, a bond they gently wear.

In a world where norms obscure love's light,
Their souls unite, defying day and night.
Society's gaze may judge, but love prevails,
Their hearts entwined, a tale that never pales.

Let not the world confine their hearts' decree,
For love transcends the boundaries we see.
In this Shakespearean ode to love so pure,
Two souls embrace, forever to endure.

SNOWWHITE

In slumber's grasp, a black girl lies serene,
Resembling Snow White, in visions seen.
Awaiting a prince's kiss, or a world that's new,
Where Black lives matter, their dreams pursue.

In ebony beauty, her restful form,
A symbol of hope, amidst the storm.
Will Charming come to break the spell,
Or will the world heed her tale to tell?

Beyond the realm of fairytales and dreams,
A yearning heart within her beams.
For love and justice, hand in hand,
To embrace her essence, to understand.

A SOUL'S RELEASE

Amidst the waves, a soul seeks sweet release,
Where burdens ease, and harsh world's tumults cease.

Beneath still waters, in solitude's grace,
His heart finds solace, in this quiet place.

With every breath, a moment's peace he finds,
In underwater dreams, the soul unwinds.

No judgment here, nor prying eyes, to pry,
In tranquil depths, where troubles gently lie.

As water cradles him with tender care,
A voice, unheard, whispers love's sweet affair.

Unseen, it guides him to a brighter light,
Where hope and love shall conquer darkest night.

DUTCH PORCELAIN

In Delft's embrace, an Arab girl stands tall,
A portrait of dreams, she graces the hall.
Born in Holland, her heart beats Dutch's grace,
Yearning to blend, to find her rightful place.

In Dutch porcelain hues, she's a vision to behold,
With headscarf like a pearl, a story yet untold.
In Dutch blue and white, her tale unfurls,
A fusion of cultures, her destiny whirls.

Like the girl with the pearl, she gazes true,
With a message from the future, clear and new.
In her eyes, hope and pride intertwined,
A vision of inclusion, love's unyielding bind.

She's more than a portrait, a soul refined,
Her dream, a beacon, a path to find.
In this tapestry of life, she'll find her way,
An emblem of unity, brighter than day.

Through Dutch porcelain colors, she'll transcend,
A bridge between worlds, love's message to send.
In pride, she's embraced, inclusion's embrace,
A girl with a dream, in this Dutch space.

QUEENS GRACE

In Dutch porcelain grace, a queen appears,
A black strong woman, vanquishing past fears.
With pink flowers adorning her regal crown,
A symbol of hope, a justice to renown.

In times of darkness, years of slavery's stain,
She rose, resilient, to break every chain.
A beacon of strength, she stands tall and bold,
For right and justice, a story to be told.

Her head held high, with dignity and pride,
A symbol of hope, in which many confide.
Her voice echoes, a call for unity,
Inclusion and love, a brighter destiny

A YOUNG MAN'S FLIGHT

In dreams, a young man gazes to the skies,
With golden wings that soar, his spirit flies.
His eyes shut, seeking dreams that touch the heart,
A beacon of hope, a new generation's start.

With pride, he stands, the Gen Z's delight,
In this vast world, his dreams take flight.
A tapestry of love, his heart does weave,
Infinite possibilities he'll achieve.

So let him dream, for dreams doth inspire,
To change the world, to reach higher.
With golden wings, he'll break the seams,
A young man's dream, fulfilled in dreams.

His lost beloved, now in grace,
A mother's touch, dreams' warm embrace.

Her presence etched, forever near,
In dreams, she calms, love's light so clear.
With longing gaze, he feels her love,
A mother's touch from realms above.

Though marble cold, her spirit's gleam,
In dreams, their bond remains supreme.
A comforting touch, love's cherished art,
In dreams, they meet, never to part.

GUIDANCE IN WINGS

In life's wide canvas, a youth does stand,
Piercing eyes, strong, with dreams so grand.
Beside him, an old bird wise and bold,
A mentor's touch, a tale unfolds.

Not quite a man, nor mere boyhood's reign,
He seeks guidance, a path to attain.
The elder's wisdom, like a beacon's gleam,
Illuminates his way, in life's stream.

In "you are included," their hearts align,
Together they'll face challenges and shine.
Through ages intertwined, they find,
A journey of growth, heart and mind.

As mentor and youth, united they'll withstand,
In life's embrace, they'll walk hand in hand.

DAVID'S AWAKENING

Beneath cold stone, a figure stands, embraced,
Michael Angelo's masterpiece, face to face.
But with a touch of warmth, his heart awakes,
From stone to flesh, he stirs, and quakes.

Sensual caress, a magic spell,
In David's form, desire does dwell.
Wild fantasies, alive, unfold,
A statue brought to life, so bold.

A sculpted form, with love's sweet hold,
His laughter echoes, stories told.
Through time, he thrives, with love's delight,
A masterpiece, in passion's flight.

From stone to human, flesh and bone,
A playful tale, by touch, is shown.

With owl perched 'tween night and day,
Symbol of change, old ways astray.
Within this one being, two souls unite,
Both he and she, in pure delight.

From sun's rise to twilight's gleam,
A dance of selves, both masculine and feminine.
With hearts unbound, they seek to find,
A world where love transcends all kind.

Within the theme of life, they reside,
A soul unchained, where love decides.
For in their essence, they have found,
A truth profound, love knows no bound.

But look beyond the guise, to know his worth,
For surface charm may veil depth and mirth.
Behind those closed lids, a world resides,
Where boundless wonders and truths coincide.

To judge him by his looks, a grave mistake,
For truest worth goes deeper than the lake.
Embrace diversity, let judgment wane,

PINK NARCISSUS

Beneath blooms fair and streams serene,
Narcissus, by his likeness, keen.
A stone mirror, his heart ensnared,
In love with self, a soul declared.

To kiss his image, fair and bright,
In mirrored depths, his heart's delight.
A lover's yearning, deeply felt,
For his own visage, he's compelled.

In self-absorbed, a charming way,
He longs to touch, in passion's sway.
Yet, oh, the irony, so clear,
No love returned, his dream austere.

The stone's coldness, no heart beats,
In self-love's thrall, Narcissus greets.
A cautionary tale to heed,
That love for others plants the seed.

In pride and vanity, he turns,
To find true love, his soul discerns.

Through cracks of pain and hardships faced,
Their spirit soared, with colors laced.
From stone wall's shade to bright pride day,

In vibrant hues, they took a stand,
For love is love, across the land.
With hearts united, they found might,
And fought for rights, with all their light.

So let us honor, with hearts aglow,
The strength they've shown, their courage show.
In every hue, a story told,
Of pride and power, so brave and bold.

FUCHSIA SPIRIT

In pink attire, a man stands tall,
Embracing truth, defying all.
Two birds take flight, in skies above,
One warns of caution, one of love.

With resolute pride, he stands his ground,
Unfazed by judgments, silence resounds.
One bird whispers, "Tread with care,"
But the other sings, "Follow your flair."

Amidst the breeze, his heart takes wing,
A radiant soul, unbound to cling.
In pink attire, he knows his worth,
A symbol of courage and self-rebirth.

This tale I weave, a spirit bold,
Ready to embrace, to be uncontrolled.
In garments pink, he walks with glee,
A beacon of love, forever free.

ENDURING STORMS

Within life's tempest and cruel disdain,
A boy, true to love, endures the pain.
Through blood and tears, he stands in might,
Trials endured, a soul alight.

In struggles faced, he finds his core,
Defiant spirit, his heart galore.
With every challenge, stronger he's been,
A beacon of strength, love's win is seen.

Unyielding, he rises above the haze,
His spirit shines through life's darkest maze.
A gay boy's journey, a testament grand,
In love's embrace, he firmly stands.

PIETÀ

For heaven sake,
A huge mistake.
A mother carrying her child to place,
No soul should ever have to face.

All natures creatures evolve best
When minds and souls are being blessed.
In future lies all greater destiny,
when love is no ignominy.

To reconcile, to see ones faith,
To put in light what's been a wraith.
Raise and pursue hope and do embrace,
Let's conspire, it's commonplace.

Future should be caring for it's past,
It's sons and daughters that should last.
We pray to finish disaffirmances,
We stongly live for renaissance.

THANK YOU

We will end this booklet in your hand by saying a loud and clear; thank you! Thank you for visiting this exhibition and taking time to read and to look at the stories. Thank you for perhaps even recognizing your story, or those of family and friends.

These stories might look like inventions of a creative mind. But in all our daily lives we meet people that experience them. Happy stories, intriguing stories, emotional stories too. And beautiful love stories.

During pride there are many other cultural events!
Go to the website and find out!

Last but not least we want to thank the organizations that believe in the work and art of Noah Valentyn and especially the people that made this exhibition possible.
Thank you!

Pride Amsterdam
Pride Kunst & Cultuur Commissie
Andreas Cultuurfonds
Pulitzer Hotel Amsterdam

And, of course, all people involved during production and organization.
